

Keynote Speaker

Tom Jackson

“Moving from Preaching to Teaching”

Join Tom Jackson as he shares his “learn by doing” approach for health education. Tom will speak about active learning, a teaching strategy that reaches out to visual, auditory, and tactile-kinesthetic learners. With this approach, student retention rates are increased and attitudes are changed! Tom Jackson engages the audience with an interactive and entertaining delivery as he presents a number of life skills activities from his books. An advocate of life skills acquisition, Tom believes life skills are the foundation of prevention. Experience first hand how you can make life skills learning, active learning!

The goals of Mr. Jackson’s keynote presentation are:

1. To understand the theory behind active learning
2. To understand why life skills are necessary in today’s changing world
3. To understand the application of using activities to teach concepts
